This HIPAA / Privacy Notice template is provided for review if the Company, its platforms, providers, or vendors handle protected health information in a manner subject to HIPAA or similar privacy laws.

Purpose

The purpose of this notice is to explain how health information may be used and disclosed and how individuals may access certain privacy rights. Final obligations depend on the exact legal role of each party, including covered entity, business associate, subcontractor, technology vendor, administrative support provider, or non-covered entity.

Potential Uses and Disclosures

- Treatment, payment, and healthcare operations where applicable.
- Scheduling, provider review, support, coordination, and platform operations.
- Legal, regulatory, audit, compliance, security, or public health requirements where applicable.
- Other uses or disclosures with authorization where required.

Safeguards

Reasonable administrative, technical, and physical safeguards should be used, including access controls, user permissions, encryption where appropriate, audit logs, secure storage, and vendor agreements.

Individual Rights

Depending on applicable law and the role of each party, individuals may have rights to request access, amendment, accounting, restrictions, confidential communications, or copies of privacy notices. Procedures should be finalized by legal counsel and the responsible covered entity or business associate.

Important Implementation Note

This template should not be published as a final Notice of Privacy Practices until healthcare counsel confirms the Company's HIPAA role, required BAAs, responsibilities, and final rights language.
